Agent details Tsarnaevs' actions after bombings

New details. Information revealed by an FBI agent on Tuesday may be a preview for what's to come at Tsarnaev's trial.

Accused Boston Marathon bombers Dzhokhar Tsarnaev and his brother Tamerlan talked multiple times with each other over Skype just two days after allegedly setting off a pair of bombs on Boylston Street and before they allegedly killed an MIT police officer as they sought to flee the area.

New details about the investigation into the bombings were revealed by an FBI agent testifying on Tuesday during a motion hearing in the obstruction of justice case of Dzhokhar Tsarnaev's friends.

Prosecutors called special agent John Walker to the stand in an attempt to prove that questioning Tsarnaev's friends and searching their apartment was done appropriately and with their consent.

Some of the testimony serves as a preview of details that could be used in Dzhokhar Tsarnaev's trial.

Walker said that authorities believed the bombs were detonated remotely and that agents were concerned with the use of cell phones by the Tsarnaev brothers.

"We were very concerned with regard to phones," Walker said, adding that the FBI will soon finish a report on how the bombs were constructed and operated. "We suspected that phones were used in the general commission of the act of terrorism on [Marathon] Monday."

Walker did not say specifically how exactly the Tsarnaev brothers allegedly used the phones on the day of the bombings.

The Tsarnaev brothers are accused of setting off a pair of pressure cooker bombs at the marathon finish line, killing three people and injuring more than 260 others before allegedly killing an MIT police officer and getting involved in a shoot out with police in Watertown days later. Tamerlan Tsarnaev was killed in the shoot out.

His brother was found hours later hiding in a dry-docked boat. He has pleaded not guilty to all charges related to the bombings.

Walker said that Dzhokhar Tsarnaev subscribed to a cell phone family plan that included four phones.

During the April 19, 2013 manhunt for the younger Tsarnaev, authorities were tracking multiple cell phone tower pings associated with the phones, causing a massive response to New Bedford and eventually the apartment where Tsarnaev's friends, Dias Kadyrbayev and Azamat Tazhayakov, lived.

Walker said he received information that a message had been sent to Tsarnaev's parents in Chechnya from a phone connected to Tamerlan Tsarnaev. Walker said that phone use on Friday morning, hours after Tamerlan Tsarnaev was killed in the shoot out, pinged off of a tower in New Bedford.

Walker did not offer more details about the message.

Testimony was expected to continue today.

Search and seizure

On April 19, 2013, authorities raided a New Bedford apartment where Dzhokhar Tsarnaev's friends Dias Kadyrbayev and Azamat Tazhayakov lived after receiving information, including cell phone tower pings, that the Tsarnaev could be there.

- Walker said the FBI director made the decision to perform a warrantless search of the apartment.
- He then talked about questioning the two friends, as well as Kadyrbayev's girlfriend.
- "I told them, 'Dzhokhar Tsarnaev, effectively he's dead. Whether he's still living or is going to go away, his life is over. Your life is not over.'"

"The enormous and abiding focus was to be sure we did not see a third bomb go off."

Fair and impartial

Judge: Proper jury can be found

Tsarnaev's three friends can get a fair trial in Boston and there is no need to move the proceedings out of state, a federal judge ruled on Tuesday.

Judge Douglas Woodlock denied a motion by defense attorneys to move the trial of Dias Kadyrbayev, Azamat Tazhayakov and Robel Phillipos out of state. Their lawyers argued that an impartial jury would be near impossible to find with all of the media coverage about the bombings. Woodlock said he would have a backup jury on standby at the Springfield divisional court.

Mayors excited about liquor license cap lift

Gov. Deval Patrick has proposed to eliminate the cap on liquor licenses in communities around the state, and local leaders couldn't be drunker with delight.

Haverhill Mayor James Fiorentini said his border city competes with New Hampshire retailers, and lifting the limits on licenses will be a "great help."

A state official said lifting the cap will eliminate a "hurdle" for businesses seeking access to liquor licenses that are often part of larger economic development projects.

Somerville Mayor Joseph Curtatone appeared with former Boston Mayor Thomas Menino at a legislative hearing in August to testify in favor of eliminating the cap, arguing that restaurant owners find it difficult to locate in Somerville because of a lack of available licenses. SHNS

'Life Sciences Corridor' is proposed along Red Line

MBTA. Mayors from several different cities are trying to retain and grow economic development along the Red Line.

The mayors of the five cities with Red Line service are trying to attract and retain businesses along the subway line in part by rebranding the area as the "Life Sciences Corridor."

Mayors from Boston, Braintree, Cambridge, Quincy and Somerville announced the new initiative on Tuesday.

The partnership aims to promote the life sciences sector along the MBTA's Red Line corridor. According to Boston Mayor Marty Walsh's office, the cities represent more than 460 companies in the life sciences industry.

In addition to working to retain those businesses, the effort will also work to attract new companies from outside the region to the corridor.

Boston, Cambridge and Quincy officials are coordinating outreach efforts while attending this year's BIO International Convention in San Diego, Walsh's office said.

Obama: Small window to get immigration reform done this year

Top priority. The comments signaled White House hope that reform can still pass this year.

Supporters of immigration reform marched from Union Station to The White House on May 1. / GETTY IMAGES

President Barack Obama said on Tuesday there was a small window of opportunity now to pass immigration reform in the House, before Washington's attention turned completely to the November midterm elections.

The comments signaled White House hope that immigration reform, a top priority for the second-term president, still could be passed this year.

Obama has been pushing to revise immigration laws and create a pathway to citizenship for some 11 million undocumented residents, but a bill that passed the Democratic-controlled Senate has been stalled in the Republican-controlled House.

"We've got this narrow window. The closer we get to the midterm elections, the harder it is to get things done around here," Obama told a meeting of law enforcement leaders. "We've got maybe a window … of two, three months to get the ball rolling in the House of Representatives."

As he has done before, Obama said he was willing to compromise on aspects of the bill, but he noted that "some pathway to citizenship" would be needed.

"We're not hell-bent on making sure that every letter of what's in the Senate bill is exactly what ultimately lands on my desk for signature," he said. REUTERS

'Bridgegate.' Christie aide 'shocked' to learn about gridlock scheme

New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie's spokesman testified on Tuesday he was shocked to learn that some of his former colleagues had organized traffic gridlock last year, apparently to retaliate against a political foe of the likely Republican presidential candidate.

Michael Drewniak, press secretary for the Christie administration, appeared before a bipartisan legislative panel in Trenton probing who was involved in the plan to jam traffic at the George Washington Bridge and why the apparent abuse of power was able to occur.

He told the panel that he had no knowledge or involvement in this "strange, unnecessary and idiotic episode that brought us here today."

The plan was apparently green-lighted by two former Christie appointees. REUTERS

Death toll in Turkish coal mine explosion rises

Seventeen coal miners were killed on Tuesday in an explosion and fire at a mine in western Turkey that trapped more than 200 others inside, government officials said. MERS virus. Orlando health workers fall ill after exposure to patient

Two health workers at a hospital in Orlando, Florida, who were exposed to a patient with Middle East Respiratory Syndrome have begun showing flu-like symptoms, and one of the two has been hospitalized.

Officials at the Dr. P. Phillips Hospital said on Tuesday the two health care workers were exposed to the patient — the second confirmed case of MERS in the U.S. — in the emergency department before it became clear that he might be infected with the often deadly virus.

The second health care worker is being isolated in his home and watched for signs of infection.

Hospital and local health officials said at a press conference that the MERS patient, also a health-care worker, had made a visit last week to the Orlando Regional Medical Center to accompany another person who was having a medical procedure. The MERS patient was symptomatic at the time but did not seek treatment.

Tested for MERS

Seventeen are being tested for MERS, five health care workers from the regional medical center and another 15 from the Dr. P. Phillips Hospital, including the two patients who have developed symptoms.

Health officials stress that MERS is not a risk to the general public, but it does spread among health-care workers who have close contact with infected patients.

Hospital officials said the MERS patient, who works in a hospital in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, is doing well and currently has a low-grade fever and a slight cough.

MERS, which causes coughing, fever and sometimes fatal pneumonia, is a virus from the same family as SARS, or Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome. REUTERS

Coal mine collapse kills two miners

A West Virginia coal mine collapsed, killing two miners during an operation that had been one of the most hazardous in the industry, officials and the company said on Tuesday.

A "ground failure" caused the Patriot Coal Corp.'s Brody Mine No. 1 to collapse at about 8:30 p.m. on Monday, trapping two miners, the federal Mine Safety and Health Administration said in a statement.

The miners, both from West Virginia, were identified as Eric Legg, of Twilight and Gary Hensley, of Chapmanville.

"We express our deepest sympathies to Eric's and Gary's families, friends and co-workers," Mike Day, Patriot's executive vice president for operations, said in a statement. REUTERS

Solange vs. Jay Z: The aftermath

I'm not going to lie. This item is mostly an excuse to once again watch the amazing footage of Solange Knowles attacking her brother-in-law, Jay Z, after the Met Gala. I know every red-blooded American watched it at least three times on Monday (once when the news broke on TMZ, once when the extended footage came out and once later to point out to your friends how Beyonce just stood there) but it will never be enough.

Anyway, Solange evidently was on a bit of a tear all evening. Earlier at the same Met Gala after-party at The Standard hotel, Solange yelled at designer Rachel Roy, sources tell Us Weekly. One source says Beyonce "got in the middle of" her sister's fracas with Roy; another source said Roy was just one of a group Solange harangued.

This still doesn't tell us what had Solange so riled up. However, she did delete all of her shots of Beyonce from her Instagram account yesterday, save for this one from 2013, with music video director Melina Matsoukas. What does it all mean?! Alas, we do not know. The Jay/Bey PR machine is just too powerful to let the real story out. I guess the only comfort we have in these troubled times is to watch the footage again.

This is the only photo of Beyonce on her sister's Instagram account?! Oh, the horror! / INSTAGRAM

Interview. Elizabeth Olsen tries out monster movies with 'Godzilla'

"I wasn't a big Godzilla person," Elizabeth Olsen confesses. She had seen Roland Emmerich's campy reboot from 1998, starring Matthew Broderick, and had some familiarity with the old Japanese imports. "I think I learned from [them] how funny dubbing could be," she recalls. "I didn't understand what Godzilla actually represented in the Japanese version."

And yet the actress's first giant movie, after a string of acclaimed turns in independent and smaller films, notably "Martha Marcy May Marlene," is the new "Godzilla." Admittedly, it's not action/monster movie junk; like the 1954 original, it's a serious film that depicts destruction with realism. "The young kids can see it and go, 'Wow, that's crazy!'" she says. "Everyone else can see hints of a larger point."

And she's glad she got what she expected. "It's always been what they said it was going to be, which is quite phenomenal," she says. "It was far more collaborative than I assumed a big film like this should be. If there was dialogue Aaron [Taylor-Johnson, who plays her husband] and I couldn't work through, we'd workshop it."

Acclaimed indie film actress Elizabeth Olsen makes her monster-budgeted movie debut in "Godzilla." / FP, GETTY IMAGES

It was also Olsen's first experience with "pre-vids," animated videos made before scenes are shot, to give actors a general sense of the effects they'll act with. "They're these basic, funny cartoons of people making terrible reactions to things," she says.

So her first giant movie worked out well. "I was actually shocked that I wanted to cry twice in this film," she reveals. "Usually I'm quite removed. I'm very critical if I'm in them." MATT PRIGGE

Twin powers activate

From husband to brother

Olsen has already reunited with her "Godzilla" husband, Aaron Taylor-Johnson, on another film, "Avengers: Age of Ultron," out next summer. The twist? They play twins. "You're supposed to know your twin superwell, so I'm glad we had one film on us before we started with 'Avengers,'" she says. "It worked out pretty amazingly."

Renting. The Back Bay hot spot was already heavily pre-leased before construction started.

By summer, Avalon Exeter, the final residential building at the Prudential Center, will be finished. The first residents started moved in this spring.

"We had a strong response to this building; it was 30-percent pre-leased before building began," says David Gillespie, senior development director at parent company AvalonBay Communities. "When people can actually see the apartment they're renting, we expect a big bump in leasing activity."

The location clinches the deal: Homes in Back Bay virtually sell themselves.

"People want a Back Bay address. They paid deposits and were waiting for this building, which is the only new construction in the Back Bay. Our buildings are our only competition," Gillespie says. At a construction cost of around $100 million, Avalon Exeter is AvalonBay's first luxury apartment development in Boston. Overall, the Prudential Center development adds 1,000 apartments to Back Bay and the Exeter brings 1,300 square feet of new street-level retail space.

Bio. Geneticist Dr. Sharon Moalem explains how our genes change our lives and vice versa

Back in biology class, in between talks on Punnett squares and dominant traits, your teacher likely implied that your genetic destiny was fixed at birth. You got some genes from your mom and some from your dad and that's how you came along. But now, new information about genes has shown that they affect your life after you're out of the womb.

"Inheritance," by geneticist Dr. Sharon Moalem, describes how the study of genetics has changed and what it might mean for the future of humanity. There have been numerous advances since the sequencing of the human genome, and an influx of new information has changed the way many scientists think about genetics.

"Now there's the idea that you can change your genetic destiny," says Moalem.

Take identical twins, for example. Identical twins with the same DNA can often be radically different.

"What they do with that DNA in their life can be radically different," Moalem says. "Exercise, for example, can trigger genes in your muscles."

Similarly, smoking tobacco triggers certain genes that help in the breakdown of caffeine. This decreases the effects of caffeine on smokers, leading to another Starbucks run.

"There's an interplay between our environment and what we do that impacts our genes," he says. "How we play it is up to us." MAX PRINZ

What it means for you

The future of medicine?

These new ideas have far-reaching implications. Angelina Jolie, for example, discovered that she carries the BRCA1 gene, which puts her at higher risk for developing breast cancer. Her decision to have a double mastectomy all but eliminated her risk.

"She became a pre-vivor," Moalem says. "That's a whole new class that never existed before."

But as genetic screenings, such as the one Jolie received, become more common and less expensive, a world of new privacy risks opens up. Someone could, Moalem warns, swipe your coffee cup, hack your genome and expose information not only about you, but about your entire family, too.

"All of a sudden, it's exposure on an unprecedented scale," he says. "We have all this concern about identity theft — this is much worse."

And as genetic screening becomes more common in prenatal care, parents may be able to make decisions about their future children.

"If you don't want to have a child with dyslexia, you can screen for that," Moalem says.

But the practice of eugenics — improving a human's genes — might decrease human biological diversity. "We might be heading down a road toward blunting human potential," Moalem says.

Horoscope

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21.
You have a reputation for being steadfast and dependable, but you should let your hair down more often and show your fun side. Romance is in the stars.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20.
Pursue a job that interests you and make a contribution to a cause you believe in. Your colleagues will be grateful, and favors will come your way when you need help in turn.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22.
Your charm and poise will make you stand out in a crowd. Social events or ceremonies will expose you to potential companions if you are looking for love.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22.
Family problems are imminent. Keep your cool. Follow through on promises you've made in order to make a good impression and be kept in the loop. Actions will speak louder than words.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22.
Don't confine your activities to a set routine. Sign up for an unconventional experience. Consider trying an exotic cooking or dance class, or learning a new language.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22.
Liven up your surroundings. You will feel proud and fulfilled if you do the work yourself. To avoid pitfalls or opposition, you should be secretive about workplace events.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21.
Don't put your social life on the back burner. Get out and laugh a little. Join a group that will let you show the lighter side of your personality.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21. You're missing an important piece of the puzzle. Someone has misled you. You may have to take a roundabout route to get the answers you need. Proceed with caution.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20.
A needy family member will be very demanding. Don't give too much of your time, energy or money. You shouldn't feel the need to finance someone else's mistakes.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18.
Scrutinize your own behavior before lashing out at someone else. Don't start something you can't finish or that could lead to conflict and regret. Look for positive options.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20.
Fight off fatigue and lethargy. Don't let depression or disinterest stand between you and an exciting event that could jumpstart your vitality.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20.
You are spreading yourself too thin. Be more selective in your choices. If you want to stay healthy, you need to learn to say no once in a while.

The homeless should be so lucky

Re: 'The homeless aren't a joke' (Metro, May 13) Kudos to fellow reader Chris Berg for chastening Metro for its "joke" comparing Jake Gyllenhaal to the homeless. As a veteran and former member of the New York City homeless population, I can assure the editors and readers of Metro that Gyllenhaal did NOT look homeless. He was smiling and dressed comfortably inside an air-conditioned sports arena sitting next to two multimillionaire entertainers watching a sporting event. The homeless should be so lucky.

The thought police are listening

If a millionaire such as LA Clippers owner Donald Sterling can get caught saying racist comments in a setup, what makes you think regular people like you won't be set up? Everyone is subjected to racism. If you're working in an organization where most of the workers are a certain color, do you really think those workers won't set you up for racist comments, even though some of them might have gotten away with saying racist comments themselves just for comedy material?

CHARLES RAMIREZ, VIA EMAIL

Extinction isn't picky

One fact that everyone overlooks in the climate change issue is a simple but powerful one: Each time there has been a natural climate change in Earth's history, it very clearly shows that the vast majority of life on the planet does not survive the process. So this argument should not be about natural versus man-made causes, but instead whether we are pro-survival or anti-survival.

'Dre day in Foxboro?

Texans receiver Johnson may want out

Rumors of a Patriots-Texans talent swap heated up last week as a source told CSNNE.com's Tom E. Curran that a trade involving Pats quarterback Ryan Mallett "may be completed soon." The Mallett trade still hasn't happened but a new wrinkle was added to a potential exchange Tuesday as Texans All-Pro wide receiver Andre Johnson openly questioned his future with the organization.

"Kind of wonder if this is still the place for me," Johnston told the Houston Chronicle. MATT BURKE

One final B's-Habs slugfest scheduled

NHL. The rivalry between Montreal and Boston will reach new heights tonight in Game 7 at TD Garden.

In the back of most everyone's mind two weeks ago, it was understood that the Bruins-Canadiens Eastern Conference semifinals series would conclude with a Game 7.

The Bruins and Canadiens have had plenty of recent Game 7 history. The 2004, 2008, 2011 and now 2014 postseasons have featured a Habs-B's do-or-die showdown. Montreal won the first two of those, but Boston captured the most recent edition, with that first-round victory catapulting them to a Stanley Cup. All-time, the Canadiens are 5-3 in Game 7s vs. Boston.

This series has featured it all: high-scoring games, low-scoring games, overtime, double overtime and shutouts, but Game 6 was a new installment — a blowout. Under head coach Claude Julien, the B's have traditionally done a good job of bouncing back from crushing losses, but as everyone knows, anything can happen in a Game 7. Still, Bruins goaltender Tuukka Rask remains steadfast in his belief that the Bruins are the better team. The netminder's message to Hub fans prior to Game 7: "Just be ready to cheer us on, and we'll get it done."

- The team that has scored first has won every game.
- The Bruins are 4-4 in Game 7s under head coach Claude Julien.

LOCAL DOCTOR SAYS SUITABLE FOR ANY AGE OR MEDICAL HISTORY

FREE Erectile Dysfunction Medication for Massachusetts Men!

FRAMINGHAM • "One-size-fits-all medication may soon be a thing of the past." That statement from the renowned Johns Hopkins Hospital refers to modern medicine's new ability to personalize prescription medications to the biochemistry of the patient.

Personalized prescription medicine is also the basis of a successful erectile dysfunction clinic in Framingham boasting a 98% success rate ... and an amazing guarantee!

That's right: The Massachusetts Men's Medical Clinic promises you'll have a positive response to a FREE test dose of medication – right in the doctor's office -- or else your visit to the clinic is free. That way, you risk nothing.

BETTER THAN VIAGRA

"Viagra, Cialis, and Levitra are 'off-the-shelf' potency drugs," says Dr. Kevin Hornsby, M.D. whose clinics have been featured on ABC, CBS, NBC, CNN, and Fox. "As such, they are a mass-produced product and not tailored to the individual patient's needs."

The doctors at Massachusetts Men's Medical Clinic review the patient's medical history and conduct a thorough examination including a sonogram.

Based on these findings the clinic's pharmacy custom blends 4 FDA-approved ingredients into one of 180 different combinations.

Most patients achieve an erection after taking a test dosage of their custom-blended formulation. If you do not respond to the medication, there is no charge for your office visit -- or the medication dose.

"I had tried everything else out there and nothing had worked for me. When I heard the commercial I thought that it was just another false advertisement. Boy was I wrong. This clinic is a great place, my sex life is back on track," says RH, Men's Medical patient.

MAKES LOVE ... LAST LONGER

The Clinic's pharmacy experts can also adjust the potency of your custom-blended formulation.

That way, you can choose how long you want your erection to last – from 30 minutes to as long as 90 minutes or more ... enough for you to orgasm a second time and fully satisfy your partner.

"Some men come to me unable to even achieve an erection, and our personalized ED medication allows them to perform in the bedroom again," says Dr. Hornsby. "For others, we can restore them to an active sex life."

GET YOUR ED MEDICATION FREE

The Men's Medical doctors' schedule at the clinic fills quickly, so patients are urged to call (508) 966-7320 to secure an appointment. The first 37 callers will receive their in-office personalized prescription medication dose free. To get your FREE medication dose, call NOW.

After that, normal office rates will be charged. Private waiting rooms with an all-male staff keep your visit confidential.

Massachusetts Men's Medical, Clinic 463 Worcester Rd., Suite 206, Framingham, MA 01701. Off the Mass Pk/I-90 on Worcester Rd/Rt. 9, just down from the Natick Mall. Board Certified Urologist endorsed.

The Unit is conveyed together with an undivided .824% interest in the common areas and facilities of the Condominium and the same .824% interest in the Organization of Unit Owners known as Commonwealth Court Condominium Trust (the "Unit Owners Organization") created by instrument, dated September 10, 1981 and filed with said Registry District as Document No. 358136 as amended.

Condominium Plan No. 32839 B-1

The unit conveyed is laid out as shown on a plan filed with the Master Deed and to which is affixed a verified statement in the form provided in M.G.L. Ch. 183A, Sec 9. It is subject to and with the benefit of the obligations, restrictions, rights and liabilities contained in the General Laws Chapter 183A, the Master Deed, and the By-Laws filed therewith, and as the same may be amended from time to time.

The post office address of the Unit is 7 Commonwealth Court, Unit 6, Brighton, Massachusetts 02135.

Cert C35-424

The premises are to be sold subject to and with the benefit of all easements, restrictions, building and zoning laws, liens, attorneys fees and costs pursuant to M.G.L.Ch.183A, unpaid taxes, tax titles, water bills, municipal liens and assessments, rights of tenants and parties in possession.
